'IRA GUNS FOR ANC' - LABOUR!

● The Real Face of Labour: Kuomba Balogun, Labour leader in Bristol.

New Moderate Image Only Skin Deep

THE LEADER OF the Labour Party in Bristol, Kuomba Balogun, has called on the IRA to give arms to the ANC. Balogun, Chairman of Bristol West Labour Party, claimed he had contacted Sinn Fein and asked for IRA assistance in the ANC's struggle to gain Black rule in South Africa.

This further evidence of a Labour Party direct link with the IRA will come as a further embarrassment to Neil Kinnock who has been busy promoting Labour's new moderate 'yuppie' image.

But beneath the designer socialism veneer lies the army of fanatical revolutionary Communists that, over the last fifteen years, have destroyed the Labour Party in the eyes of the British Working Class.

Labour's links with the IRA are well documented, they stretch from the Houses of Parliament and the most senior of Labour MPs to the IRA terrorists on the streets of Belfast.

Just look at Labour's record for last year alone;

★ January 1989: Labour MP Ken Livingstone led an IRA march through London. The marchers chanted 'IRA, IRA', carried posters supporting the IRA's bombing campaign and some wore IRA uniforms.

★ August 1989: Kuomba Balogan visited Belfast and met with leading members of the IRA to discuss street violence with a view to helping Black extremists in the St Paul's area of Bristol in their on-going confrontation with the Police.

★ August 1989: Labour MP Jeremy Corbyn led another IRA march through London. The march was supported by virtually all of the capital's Labour Branches.

★ November 1989: When Neil Kinnock was confronted at Westminster by the Rev Ian Paisley who showed him a video of Labour Party members chanting 'IRA, IRA' during a march. Kinnock refused to take any action.

Already this year Labour MP Keith Vaz has hindered a Police investigation into an IRA bombing in Leicester by claiming in Parliament that the bomb belonged to the British army!

The Labour Party has lost touch with the British working class. Their link with IRA terrorism is of concern to all Britons and should be a matter for the Police.

Labour's Statement

"We make a public plea to the IRA to consider ways of strongly giving some assistance to the armed wing of the ANC".

Miners Betrayed

BRITAIN'S COAL miners have been stabbed in the back yet again by the Tory Government.

The Government has announced plans to import low-sulphur coal from abroad to fuel the Power Stations in the run-up to the Power Industry sell-off.

The move comes after Thatcher announced that placing filters on power station chimneys was too expensive and would cut the profits for their new owners.

So instead the Tories are buying foreign coal and putting British miners on the dole.

It's typical of Thatcher's profit before people policies.

DON'T LEAVE IT TILL IT'S TOO LATE

Tenants Cheated in Poll Tax Loophole

POLL TAX is intended to replace rates but up to 960,000 private tenants could find themselves paying both. Landlords include the rates in the rents they charge, and they will be under no obligation to reduce those rents when rates disappear. In Scotland landlords have already made a staggering £40 million with this loophole and in London landlords are set to make £90 million. The Poll Tax is an anti-family tax and hits the people who can least afford to pay it.

Seamen Sacked

BRITISH SEAMEN face the dole queue because British Steel have put six of its bulk carriers under foreign flags. They will now be replaced by men from the Philippines and India and the carriers will now be registered in Hong Kong and the Bahamas. Under a National Front Government there would be no flags of convenience. Ships serving British interests would be British ships manned by British seafarers. It is a disgrace that a 'British' company treats British seamen in such a way, all in the quest to save money - what a prime example of the results of privatisation.

Service Not Profit

FORTY JOBS will be lost in Pendle, Lancs if Spaniards are allowed to take over refuse collection in the town. Madrid-based firm Fosca are the front-runners for the contract, put out to tender by Pendle Council under the direction of the Tory Government. It should be a public service that Britain's streets are kept clean. Not a profit-making exercise that is given to the highest bidder.

No Asian Enemy

● Falklands hero Lawrence

THE AUSTRALIAN Army has refused to show a new series of battle training films because the nation's enemies were portrayed as Asians. The film maker was Robert Lawrence MC, a lieutenant in the Scots Guards during the Falklands War whose story was told in 'Tumbledown', the award-winning BBC drama. Army chiefs said films showing Asians as the enemy would not be welcome. It was extreme and racially inflammatory to do so. With rampant Islamic Armies on the march in many parts of the globe, Robert Lawrence's films designed to show 'greater realism' than previous ones, clearly hit the mark.

SCRAP FOREIGN AID!

● 3,500 villagers flooded out of their homes thanks to British Foreign Aid!

BRITISH FOREIGN aid to Third World India over the past ten years has damaged India's environment and made social problems worse rather than better, according to a recent investigation by the official National Audit Office.

Since 1980, the Government has given away over a billion pounds of British taxpayers' money to India. The Audit Office investigtion into where this money has ended up has revealed that it has harmed the Indians' environment and society.

For example, £70 million of our money was handed out to a zinc mine and smelter in Rajasthan, which spent it on enlarging an open-cast mine which scarred the landscape. Indians worked in dangerous and polluted contitions in breach of even India's not over-demanding health and safety regulations, and the mine polluted the surrounding water supply with poisonous zinc wastes and the soil with dangerous chemical dust.

British aid also enabled the mine to make 3,500 local villagers homeless by building a dam which in providing more water for the mine to pollute also flooded their villages. But our aid money never got as far as paying proper compensation to these Indians driven from their homes by British foreign aid.

The NF has always said that foreign aid to the Third World - except where it formed part of an Immigrant repatriation package and thus benefited Britain directly - was a waste of our taxpayers' money. It also seems it harms those it is supposed to help. It should stop at once.

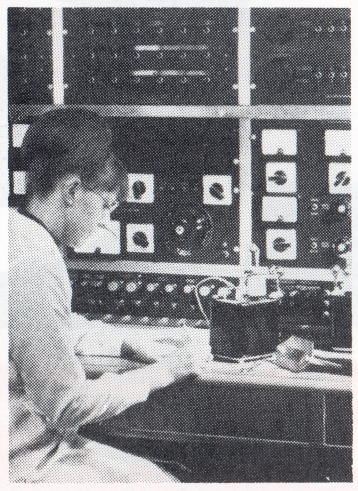
Tories Put Labour Minds at Rest

LABOUR MPs were frantic in the House of Commons of Thursday 22nd February when it was announced Britain would give Foreign Aid to Eastern Europe.

The MPs were not concerned that the Aid might be taken from British taxpayers or from funds destined for the British people; they were concerned that the Aid would be taken from money earmarked by the Government for the Third World.

Minister for Overseas Development, Lynda Chalker put their minds at rest. She informed the House that Britain had given £3.5 Billion in the past eight years helping Africa and they would continue Aid at that level.

Loyalty & Funds!



"THE BRAIN Drain is a very real and serious problem for British universities, British science and ultimately Britain as a whole"

That is the belief of Professor Michael Duff, formerly of Imperial College London, but now of Texas University. He was one of 1,600 British scientists working abroad who signed a petition calling on the Government to increase the funding for science to entice British scientists back to Britain.

An estimated £400 million a year is needed to remedy the situation as British scientists can command up to three times their British salary abroad.

While the National Front believes Britain must make the funds available to hold on to its scientists, it also notes the total lack of loyalty of those scientists who were educated and trained in Britain yet have chosen to use their expertise to help foreign countries.

As Japan aims to put an hotel in orbit Britain's Space Programme plans . .

Peas in Space

IN JANUARY Japan became the third nation to send spacecraft to the Moon. Its entirely home-built Nissan M3S-2 rocket roared off Japan's national launchpad at Kagoshima, sending two satellites to the Moon, around which one will stay in permanent orbit.

The same month, Japan's national space agency announced plans to land three men on the Moon by 2010, and to follow this with setting up a permanent manned Japanese Moonbase leading to Japanese colonisation and exploitation of our planet's mineral-rich satellite. Government spokesmen spoke of their nation's plans to build cities on the Moon and reach out to the other worlds of our Solar System.

At the same time the giant Japanese Shimuzu Corporation announced it was building a hotel in Earth orbit, whilst other big Japanese corporations proclaimed their intention of further lengthening their world lead in microchip technology using revolutionary low-gravity techniques in space factories.

Meanwhile in January Britain, which used to have a national space programme but cancelled it in July 1971, and has put a solitary one satellite into orbit, also in 1971, announced daring plans to put 32 dried peas into space, in two years, on board a Soviet spaceship.

It says a lot about the state of our country compared to the one we beat in the last War, doesn't it?

● A simulation of Japan's plans in space. Maybe the British peas will be served in Japan's hotel!

They Remembered Fred Hill

● Motor Cyclists in Birmingham remember Fred Hill.

A MEMORIAL service was held in Birmingham last month in for Fred Hill the veteran motor cyclist who refused to wear a crash helmet. A large number of motor cycle enthusiasts attended.

Fred Hill wasn't against safety measures and backed road education. His argument was against the law allowing Sikhs to ride around without crash helmets while British riders were forced to wear them.

Fred Hill died in Pentonville Prison six years ago at the age of 74 after serving 19 sentences for not wearing a helmet. His courage and dogged resistance to preferential laws for immigrants is an example to us all.

The New President of Europe

Twenty things you didn't know about Charles J. Haughey, Irish Prime Minister and new "President" of the Common Market.

1. Haughey comes from a family steeped in anti-British terrorism. His father, Johnny Haughey was a "Commandant" in the IRA in the 1920's. His mother, Sarah McWilliams, was also an active IRA terrorist. Both Haughey's parents were involved in the murder gang in and around Swatragh, Co. Londonderry until they had to flee the law into the Irish Republic.

2. Haughey's first known political act was to burn the Union Jack after leading a march under Nazi swastika flags through the middle of Dublin on May 7th, 1945, the eve of V.E. Day. Haughey's anti-British mob then rioted through the streets stoning the British Consulate.

3. In 1954, Haughey proposed a toast to the death of British soldiers on the eve of an IRA bombing campaign.

4. Haughey married Maureen Lemass, daughter of Fianna Fail leader and later Irish PM Sean Lemass. Mr Lemass later awarded his son-in-law several juicy - Cabinet portfolios when in power in the 1960's.

5. Haughey is a multi-millionaire, one of the richest men in Ireland. He owns Abeyville, an 18th Century mansion set in 250 acres of grounds, at Kinsealy, Co. Dublin, and has his own private island, Innishvicillaun off the coast of Co. Kerry, plus sundry farms, racehorses, and his own helicopter.

6. Haughey moves in a circle consisting of property speculators, shady "businesmen" who like himself got very rich, very mysteriously. Even a Haughey supporter, T.Ryle Dwyer, described him as "a friend of the rich and influential".

7. Throughout his career, Haughey has been at the centre of rumours about fixing corrupt deals, putting Government contracts the way of his shady business cronies, and so on. In 1967, James Dillon, a leading Irish politician, remarked apropos Haughey "I think the acceptance of corruption as the norm in public life is shocking".

8. In 1969, Haughey sold his house at Raheny to Matt Gallagher, one of his questionable property speculator sidekicks, for £200,000, four times what he paid for it. He first arranged to get planning permission for a housing estate being built on the site, then as Minister of Finance was alleged to have moved the repeal of the section of the 1965 Finance Act under which he would have had to pay income tax on the deal.

9. One of Haughey's Fianna Fail colleagues, George Colley, was so disgusted with him that in May 1967 he told a Party Youth Congress in Galway "not to be too dispirited if some people in high places appear to have low standards".

10. Haughey has repeatedly been involved in scandals involving getting drunk and having affairs with other peoples's wives. His response as Minister of Justice was to amend the Irish Libel laws to block Irish newspapers printing anything about his sordid private life.

11. Irish reporters such as Geraldine Kennedy of the Irish Times who have dared to criticise Haughey have been bombarded with threatening phone calls, beaten up inside the Irish Parliament building, and in the case of Ms Kennedy physically threatened to their faces by Haughey's beefy son Ciaran and then had their phones tapped by the Irish police on Haughey's orders. They have also been elegantly described by our new Euro-President as "a bunch of f---ers". He also said that some Irish Times editorials criticising him "read like they have been done by an old woman sitting in the bath with the water getting cold around her fanny".

12. In 1979 Haughey became Irish Prime Minister by one vote after openly bribing Dublin Independent MP Tony Gregory with a signed contract guaranteeing £100 million of Government expenditure in Gregory's constituency.

13. After that election Haughey's election agent, Pat O'Connor, was convicted of voting twice for his boss.

14. Charles J. Haughey was responsible for setting up the Provisional IRA in 1969-70. As Irish Minister of Finance, Haughey laundered over £50,000 of Irish Government money channelled to the IRA faction that became the Provos.

15. Haughey was involved with Irish Army Captain James Kelley in a plot to arm the IRA. Kelley went to Hamburg in March and April 1970 to buy the IRA pistols, automatic rifles, machine guns and other military equipment. Haughey's job was to "square" the authorities at Dublin airport to get shipments through.

● A smirking Haughey leaves court cleared of running guns to the IRA.

16. On 23rd October 1970 Haughey appeared in Court in Dublin charged with runing guns for the IRA. But Haughey and his fellow Irish Government and Irish Army defendants got off. NOT because they convinced the Court that they hadn't run guns to the Provos. But because the Court accepted their defence that arming Europe's most murderous gang of terrorists wasn't a breach of Irish law

17. Fellow Party member, Jim Gibbons, suffered a heart attack after being beaten up by Haughey supporters after proposing a vote of no confidence in him in 1982.

18. During the Falklands War as Irish PM Haughey backed the Argentines to such an extent that even Ulster Republican MP Gerry Fitt remarked on his 'extremely anti-British Government'.

19. As President of Europe Haughey has spent £500,000 on a press team to publicise himself. He has also spent £200,000 on leasing a jet to fly around in, courtesy of the British taxpayer.

THERE IS nothing like hearing from a long-lost friend; and never more so when it is a long lost 'Friend of the Front'.

Friends of the Front is the scheme whereby members and supporters who aren't active within the National Front can play their part in helping the Party by contributing £5.00 or more to the Central Administration every month to help with the running of the Party.

February has been the month for hearing from old friends. After the latest Friends of the Front bulletin was sent out numerous old friends got in touch, sending their apologies for their lapse in payments as well as cheques to cover their arrears.

Those loyal members and supporters who support the 'Friends of the Front' scheme are the backbone of the National Front. Their committment during the dark years of 1985-88 helped keep the NF afloat, now in brighter times they are helping to streamline the Administration Department.

And brighter times they are. On Sunday 25th February at a Central London hotel I was able to report to the National Directorate of the National Front that income for January 1990 was THREE TIMES the income of January 1989. That the January Member's Bulletin prompted FOUR TIMES the membership renewals of the same bulletin last year.

1990: A Year for the National Front

Administration Report with Tina Wingfield

I also informed the Directorate of Nigel Howard's £2,000 donation and of the enthusiastic response to the Building Fund and Mid-Staffordshire Election Campaign Fund.

March will see the purchase for the Administration Department of the long-awaited computer and of the FAX machine for the Press Office.

Every day in Administration I see the growth of the National Front in the form of new members, renewals and donations. It was nice to get out of the office on Thursday 22nd February and see the growth of the Party first hand at a Beckenham meeting.

There was well over 30 in attendance, a collection of £60.00 and a programme of activities for the coming weeks that exhausted you just listening to it!

Keep those donations coming in for Mid-Staffordshire and good luck to all the campaign workers in the constituency.

Any Old Excuse!

THE NEWLY formed Bridlington Branch of the National Front are taking the matter of paperselling in the town up with the East Yorkshire County Council and the local police.

On Saturday 10th of February they were selling in the town centre when the Police moved them on. At first the officers claimed 'to sell racist literature in East Yorkshire contravened a local by law'.

"What a load of nonsense" said the local NF sellers, so the Police went away, only to come back minutes later saying the paper sale must stop because of visiting rugby fans in the town might cause trouble.

The Tale of Two Statements

"The mere presence of National Front members at the Troops Out Movement march through London on 12th August will in my view be likely to cause a breach of the peace and those members will be arrested".
Superintendent P. Bean of New Scotland Yard to NF Chairman Ian Anderson on Tuesday 8th August 1989.

"Provided no offences are committed, members of the public, regardless of political persuasion, are perfectly entitled to observe protest marches and processions."
Superintendent P.Bean of New Scotland Yard to Jim Archer of the NF Media Monitoring Unit on 12th September 1989.

Such are the muddled minds of some of Britain's policemen.

JOHN HILL RALLIES CAMPAIGN WORKERS!

THE NATIONAL Front go into the Mid-Staffordshire by-election the best prepared they have been since the Bermondsey by-election of 1982.

John Hill, an excellent candidate, is working tirelessly in the constituency building up local contacts in Rugeley, Lichfield and Stone and preparing the ground for what is hoped will be the best NF election result for a number of years.

The Post Office approved the NF election address after having to consult solicitors with regard to the Race Relations Act. The address is now printed, stuffed into envelopes and ready to go out.

'John Hill' posters are being printed along with a supplementary leaflet 'Who Really Speaks for the people of Rugeley", while a leaflet for Polling Day is being specially prepared.

John is full of praise for Matthew Sloane and Stoke National Front who have taken on organising the campaign in Stone in the north of the constituency.

At a meeting of campaign workers, John called for the maximum effort from all West Midlands activists making no secret that if all the stops are pulled out the National Front campaign could make a real impact on the voters of Mid-Staffordshire.

NEWSPAPER CAMPAIGN GETS RESULTS

THE NATIONAL Front's advertising campaign proved an overwhelming success.

NF recruitment adverts appeared in papers throughout Britain and resulted in hundreds of inquiries about the Party.

The award for the best advert goes to Great Yarmouth, whose advert appeared in both Yarmouth and Lowestoft papers for the whole of February.

The Times, the so-called journal of record, showed its lack of impartiality by refusing a National Front advert. A pretty poor state of affairs when it had accepted an advert from the terrorist African National Congress.

● Great Yarmouth NF's Advert.

NF Action in Newton Abbot

SATURDAY 10th February saw NF activists from Torquay, Teignmouth and Plymouth descend on the market town of Newton Abbot for a National Front recruitment drive.

Over 1,000 Hong Kong leaflets were given out and copies of The FLAG sold to passing shoppers.

The response from the locals was very good with many stopping to chat about about the NF and its immigration policy. These included two ex-members from the early '80s who pledged to rejoin now that the Front was active again in the area.

South-West Regional Organiser, Mark Cotterill, was so pleased with the response that he has organised further Days of Action for other small Devon towns on a one a month basis for the rest of the year.

CORRECTION

IN THE February Issue of The FLAG it was stated that Andrew Maggs spoke at the NF's Bristol Rally. In fact the speaker referred to was David Perry the Treasurer of Bristol National Front. Apologies to all concerned.

Bomb Threat Fails To Stop Meeting

SIXTY LOCAL members attended the best ever Exeter Branch meeting of the National Front at the three-star Imperial Hotel in the town.

NF Chairman, Ian Anderson, joined committee members, Bill Abblet and Alan Hinder, and SW Regional Organiser, Mark Cotterill in front of an enthusiastic audience, who contributed to £168.00 collection.

The meeting went ahead despite Police concern over a bomb scare and a Red demonstration outside the hotel.

● A packed meeting in Exeter to hear NF chairman, Ian Anderson. The bomb scare and the Red Demo all added to an exciting evening.

FRONT PLEDGE ON NHS!

NATIONAL FRONT paper-sellers stood side by side with Ambulancemen in York last month during a papersale in the town.

Many questioned the Front supporters on their view of the dispute and where happy when told that the National Front supported all aspects of the NHS and the ambulancemen's stand was in line with protecting the Health Service that the Tory Government seemed bent on dismantling.

P.O. Box For Derby NF

THE DERBY Branch of the National Front can now be contacted directly by writing to The Secretary, P.O.Box 132, Derby DE1 9PE.
Local Organiser, Rob Rainsford, has work tirelessly in the town to promote the National Front and, with branch meetings taking place regularly. the small number of members at present look certain to increase dramatically during 1990.

Headlines

BOLTON AND Wigan National Front organiser, Dave Sudworth, reports his branch has received a number of membership enquiries since they placed their advertisement in local papers as part of the NF national advertising campaign.
Dave does admit however, that they were helped even more when the 'Wigan Reporter' carried a front page story on the NF recruitment drive in the town soliciting concerned quotes from the towns two MPs.

Ibrox Sale

THE NATIONAL Front are back paperselling at Ibrox Park, the home of Glasgow Rangers Football Club.
Glasgow NF organiser, Trevor Butler reported a brisk trade and believes the paper will soon become a firm favourite with the Rangers fans.

Complaints

PRESS COMPLAINTS by the National Front against 'The Sun' and 'The Guardian' concerning the reporting of the NF Remembrance Day Parade to the Cenotaph in November, are being put forward to adjudication by the Press Council.

Newcastle

ONE OF the busiest branches during February has been Newcastle who have distributed over 3,000 leaflets.
Branch Organiser, John Harwood, reports things improving for the NF on Tyneside, an observation backed up by the re-appearance of the excellent 'Newcastle Patriot', the local NF magazine.

ANC Crime

ON SUNDAY 11th February the Young Conservatives held the 2nd day of their Annual Conference in Torquay.
It was the day Nelson Mandela was released from prison and the event was marked by the Torbay Branch of the National Front who gave out leaflets to the delegates detailing the crimes of the ANC.

Take Care

SLOUGH BRANCH as reported in the last issue of 'The FLAG' have taken up the dangerous pastime of leafletting Southall.
Local Organiser, Tom Mundy, reports that his team is still intact after a number of visits into this 'forbidden zone'. They did however bump into a police patrol one evening and were advised by the surprised and amused officer who read the NF leaflet to "Take very great care and watch out for yourselves!"
Isn't it nice to know they care.

• Salt Hill Park Toilets

Council Aids Queers

SLOUGH'S LABOUR Council is keeping a public toilet open for homosexuals to commit indecent acts!

Salt Hill Park toilets is known as 'The Cottage' because it is used as a centre for importuning for sex in its cubicles. In one week 12 men were arrested for indecency charges in the toilets.

This led Slough Police to call for the toilets to be closed saying they were satisfied that little legitimate use was being made of the toilets.

But Slough Council has refused the Police's recommendations announcing that the Council believed it necessary to "provide a service for sections of the community by keeping the toilets open".

Gollywogs

"ANTI-RACIST" cranks who tried to get the British gollywog banned from shops and jamjars because it was "insulting to Blacks" took a knock when the Nigerian delegation turned up at the International Toy and Hobby Fair in London at the beginning of February.

The Nigerians homed in on the stand of Cornish Fairies of Helston, Cornwall, a leading British gollywog manufacturer, and promptly ordered £5,000 worth of gollies for export to Nigeria. Where, it seems, Blacks are eager to buy them.

Boat People To Cost Us Dear!

BRITAIN IS to offer Vietnam a multi-million pound deal to take back the boat people.

Foreign Office minister, Francis Maude, flew to Hanoi last month to discuss the package with Vietnam's Communist Government.

Maude is hoping to shift 50,000 boat people from the camps in Hong Kong.

It's a problem that is nothing to do with Britain, yet the British people are going to have to fork out their hard-earned money to pay for the resettlement plan.

Buy Our Tin

THE GEEVOR tin mine at Land's End closed during February because of a slump in the world price of tin.

British industry needs tin and could fill Geevor's order book ten times over but cheap foreign imports means that tin workers in Cornwall must be laid off.

The National Front believes it is the duty of British industry to buy British tin first. Top-up orders of foreign tin should only be allowed when British mines are working flat out.

Mosque Tax

POLL TAX payers in East Lancashire will be facing a larger than expected bill if the County Council grants the request of the Lancashire Council of Mosques for an annual handout of £48,580.

The Life of the Land is The Life of the Nation

'The FLAG' has consistently highlighted the plight of endangered British birds, bees, butterflies and so on. Why? Because the humblest native British species of creeping insect has a million times more right to live here in our country than all the millions of immigrants who have invaded it. Our indigenous beetles and bugs are more British by far than all the Imams in Bradford and all the Rastas in Brixton.

And because, as the official National Front Statement of Policy puts it: "We are the wardens of the living land. Its survival, and the welfare of the complex web of life of which we are a part, is essential to our own. Thus in preserving the life of the land we preserve the life of the Nation and the Race. The relentless exploitation, pollution and destruction of the Earth's natural environment in the interest of ruthless short-sighted greed threatens us as much as the other living creatures with which we share this planet, which also have a right to survival. Therefore the defence of the environment is central to our programme for national and racial survival."

WE MUST STOP THE DESTRUCTION OF THE RAIN FORESTS

THE SECOND STORM in three years of an intensity normally to be expected only once every two-and-a-half centuries. The second record-breaking warm winter in a row. Last year the warmest on average throughout the year since records began in 1659, and the sunniest since at least 1909.

The five warmest years around the whole world on record in the last ten years. Something, clearly, is very wrong with our weather.

The cause is clear: the "Greenhouse Effect", caused by rising levels of carbon dioxide in the air due to more industry and fuel-burning putting out this "greenhouse gas" and more cutting down of the tropical rain forests which usually absorb carbon dioxide and restore the balance of nature.

The result is to trap more heat rays, from the Sun, warming the world up.

As Dr. John Houghton, Director General of the Government Meteorological Office, which produces the weather forecasts, said on behalf of his scientists at the end of last year, "We believe global warming is already happening in Britain".

This warming in turn puts more energy into the atmosphere's "weather machine", causing ever more ferocious storms to lash our land, killing more and more people. If unchecked, it could kill our world as it killed our sister planet Venus, where a "runaway greenhouse effect" has left dead deserts baking in a Regulo-9 gas oven heat of 460° C, crushed beneath ninety times Earth's air pressure of carbon dioxide and shrouded in clouds of deadly sulphuric acid..

And the greenhouse effect is unchecked. Government leaders like Margaret Thatcher and US President Bush do nothing as carbon dioxide levels mount day by day. With nearly fifty of her subjects dead at the hands of the worsening weather, Thatcher dithered and waffled, preferring waiting for "more evidence" that the Greenhouse Effect is happening, to action.

On February 5th President Bush disappointed expectations that America would take the lead in fighting the Effect by offering no new initiatives when he addressed the fifty-nation Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change in Washington.

Yet just a few days earlier, on January 31st, the West's leading energy watchdog, the International Energy Agency, published an official report highlighting the reality of the gathering greenhouse danger and, significantly, where increasingly it is coming from.

The IEA warned that - as if things weren't bad enough already - the emissions of the carbon dioxide greenhouse gas will soar by half as much again in the next 15 years if nothing is done. And the culprits, the report warned, will not be the civilised countries of the world, where the people are becoming more and more aware of the environmental threat, but the backward banana republics of the "Third World".

As the IEA report points out, these Africans and Asians are under too much pressure from their populations, rising out of control and flocking to the city shanty towns seeking industrial jobs, to bother with environmental safeguards as they build polluting factories and cut down their remaining forests.

BANK LOANS

Pollution and destruction they can only afford because it is paid for by foreign aid and bank loans from the civilised world.

Aid and loans which could, literally, be a way of cutting our own throats - or cooking ourselves to death. For the Third World's new factories and forest clearances are killing our world. They cannot be allowed to continue. For the sake of the Earth, foreign aid and loans to the Third World must stop now.

If necessary, we must go further to save our planet. As a senior Defence Ministry spokesman discussing the role of Britain's armed forces after the Cold War told the Sunday Times on January 28th, "Perhaps they (our armed forces) will have a role in protecting the environment - giving Brazil a bloody nose to stop it destroying the rain forests for example".

The National Front recognises that, "The Earth's living world, its biosphere, is an interrelated unit. Damage inflicted on it by other countries far away affects us in Britain, threatens us in Britain. We cannot and will not tolerate such threats.

An NF Government will co-operate with other countries, without surrendering our independence, in combating world-wide phenomena such as the Greenhouse Effect . . . We will take action to discourage countries which, for example by destroying their rain-forests or polluting the air or sea, threaten not just their environment but our own.

In the long run, the welfare of the environment is essential to the welfare of our land and our people. We at least recognise this fact, and will actually do something about it."

• The rising levels of carbon dioxide is due to the cutting down of the rain forests which normally absorb the gas and restore the balance of nature.

Falcon Slaughter

THE PEREGRINE falcon is one of Britain's most magnificent birds of prey. Its spectacular killing stoop, exceeding a hundred miles an hour as it plummets to take its prey on the wing, made it for centuries the falconer's pride.

In recent years legal protection from persecution by gamekeepers, pigeon-fanciers and egg-collectors, together with controls on the use of pesticides which were weakening their eggshells, have led to a massive upsurge in the numbers of this once-endangered species. According to top ornithologist Dr Derek Ratcliffe, the British peregrine population has recovered to pre-1940 levels, and the bird is even returning to long-forsaken haunts in South-East England.

But the rise in falcon numbers has now brought a new threat from foreign greed to this British bird.

"BUSINESSMEN"

Illegal killing of peregrines has shown a massive upsurge recently. The falcons are being shot and poisoned, and their nests destroyed, in order to preserve the "sport" of grouse-shooters. Most of whom are not aristocratic Britons, who at least show a measure of restraint and concern for their traditional moorland estates, but Japanese and Arab "businessmen", being entertained with a bit of indiscriminate slaughter of our wildlife by the merchant banks and City shysters who are buying up more and more of our grouse-moors.

CITY SHYSTERS

To the men in grey suits in boardrooms hundreds of miles from wild high moors they have never seen, preserving grace and beauty and nobility in the sky over Britain counts as nothing beside keeping a bunch of fat foreigners sweet. So with cold-eyed deliberation they illegally unleash the shooters and the poisoners to sweep the falcon from our skies, esteeming this glorious embodiment of flying freedom no more than "vermin".

To us in the National Front it is the City shysters, and their foreign vampire clients draining the lifeblood of our economy, who are the vermin. Whilst the question of grouse-shooting and other "field sports" is one Britons must decide among ourselves, we can say certainly that we want foreigners killing our wildlife cleared out of our country.

To us the falcon is of far more worth and value than its miserable persecutors, and we demand that the Government ceases trying to keep alien "sportsmen" sweet and enforces the law that protects this noble bird.

Long may the falcon fly free in our British sky!

Electricity Sell-Off Scuppers Clean-Up

THE WORLD'S leading meteorologists are now agreed that global warming of 2 to 4 degrees centigrade will be inevitable after the year 2030 unless action is taken to drastically curb the emissions of gases causing the greenhouse effect.

The temperature rise would make the world hotter than at any time for the last 125,000 years.

In the light of such findings it is ironic that Britain's Tory Government has scrapped its plans to control the emissions from our power stations.

The £2 billion clean-up programme has been scrapped because it would jeopardize the Government's electricity privatisation plans.

The Department of Energy were to have fitted filters to all Britain's large power stations to reduce sulphur emissions but National Power and Power-Gen the two electricity companies to succeed the Central Electricty Generating Board have told the Government that the filter project would make it difficult to sell the industry.

So there we have it. Future generations are being put at risk so that the Government and the parasites in the City can make a buck out of selling off Britain's power industry.

For the Tories it's obviously 'A pound in their pocket today is more important than a healthy future for our children tomorrow'.

More Mandela

DON'T LET IT upset you, just sit back and enjoy it. That is my advice to the thousands of National Front members and supporters who are getting agitated over the release of Nelson Mandela and all the media coverage he is getting.

Every mention of Mandela on television is now winning us new recruits. As the credits roll for the Six O'Clock News each evening, Britons previously indifferent to the mouthings of the veteran ANC terrorist have suddenly come to dislike him intensely.

As husbands, wives and children sit in front of their televisions, many having supper after a hard day's work, shivers are sent down their spines as they see the hordes of blacks stamping, chanting, waving their fists as they celebrate the first nail in the coffin of White South Africa.

You see it is all a bit too close to home. Britain has black homelands too. Brixton, Handsworth, Chapeltown, Bradford, Southall and the rest, and seeing what can happen when White Government loses control gives all Britons a timely reminder of the powder keg they are sitting on!

So my message to the media is let's have more Mandela. Ram him and his ANC terrorists down our throats until there isn't a home in Britain that isn't sick of the sight of him, . . . and if you can add a pinch of Salman Rushdie, marauding Muslims and Hong Kong immigrants as well, all the better.

Making a Desert and Calling it Profit

THE DEVASTATION OF the British countryside by agri-business over the last half-century has wrought havoc among some of its most attractive and harmless inhabitants - our British butterflies.

In recent years four of our 60 native breeding species have been wiped out, thanks to destruction of their habitats by modern farming practices, and many other kinds of butterfly are now seriously threatened.

Agri-business "improvement" of old hay meadows, with massive spraying of chemical pesticides, which kill harmless butterflies more than the real pests, most of which have evolved resistance, and herbicides, which kill the wild flowers on which butterfly caterpillars feed, have reduced the numbers even of our commoner species. Whilst agri-business has devastated the habitats of rarer species.

Chalk downs and heathlands have been ploughed up, wiping out whole populations of Adonis, Chalkhill, Silver-Studded and Small Blues, the Brown Argus, Silver-Spotted, Grizzled and Dingy Skippers, Graylings, Marbled Whites, and Duke of Burgundy, Marsh and Dark-Green Fritillaries.

Where their downs and heaths have not been ploughed up in search of profit they have been abandoned altogether in return for EEC "set-aside grants" (paying farmers not to farm!). The sheep which grazed and maintained the unique flora the butterflies need are slaughtered and the land turns into scrub, in which the butterflies can find neither flowers for themselves nor food for their larvae.

Draining lowland fens, much funded by the Common Market, wiped out the Large Copper and drove one of our biggest and most beautiful butterflies, the Swallowtail, into a last stand in the Norfolk Broads, now threatened by the "tourist industry".

"A source of wonder dancing on the breeze"

The ending of traditional woodland management practices such as rotational coppicing and the maintenance of wide sunny glades and rides have turned those broadleaf woodlands which have not been grubbed up by the Brussels-funded "improvers" into high, dense gloomy places often "afforested" with conifers in which only the Speckled Wood, White Admiral and Purple Hairstreak can survive.

The lovely Purple Emperor has greatly declined, its food-plant sallow needing open woodland.

The woods turned into serried ranks of tall trees awaiting the axe leave no room also for the blackthorn, food plant of the Black and Brown Hairstreaks. Loss of blackthorn from the thousands of miles of hedges dug up each year has also hit these butterflies hard. Amid those gloomy ranks of alien conifers spreading across what land the chemicals and ploughs of agri-business leave, there is little of the herbaceous woodland vegetation which sustained such winged jewels as the Pearl-Bordered, Silver-Washed and High Brown Fritillaries. And the spread of the City-funded conifer plague across the wildest and most remote northern boglands strikes at the homeland of the Large Heath.

If the rape of our countryside at the behest of Brussels and the City of London goes on like this, our children will grow up to a Britain virtually without butterflies, their children denied a source of wonder and delight dancing on the breeze forever.

For them, and for over fifty different kinds of British butterfly, agri-business will have made a desert and called it Profit.

Bat Faces Extinction

THE MOUSE-eared bat is set to become extinct in this country when the last British survivor, a lone male, perishes.

Although the last British mouse-eared bat could normally expect to live to twice its current age of 15 years, it has now lost a vital canine tooth and its other teeth are too worn to crunch its insect prey properly, so it is expected to starve in the next few months.

The eighteen-inch-wingspan mouse-eared bat bred for many years in Sussex, but destruction of its habitat by agri-business and property developers wore down its numbers, never large, until the last females died in 1976. Now the last lonely male is dying, taking with it another species of British wildlife, another victim of unrestrained human greed.

• Mouse-eared bat

Our Farmland is becoming a Prairie

HEDGES, SUCH a distinctively British feature of our countryside and refuge for much of our native wildlife, are being hacked down and grubbed up at an ever-increasing rate, the Council for the Protection of Rural England revealed in mid-January.

The Council published figures, obtained from aerial surveys carried out by the Countryside Commission and the Department of the Environment, show that the destruction of hedges increased from 2600 miles a year between 1947 and 1969 to 2900 miles a year from 1969 to 1980, then a record 4000 miles a year between 1980 and 1985. Although figures are not yet officially available, the Council says the rate of hedge destruction has not fallen since 1985.

For much of this time, successive Governments and then the Common Market, actually paid farmers to commit this environmental vandalism, which not only destroys the unique character of our countryside and endangers rare native animals and plants but also leads in the long run to greater soil loss through wind erosion and hence imperils the fertility of the land and hence the livelihoods of the very farmers who do it.

Even today, for all Maggie's "Green" posings, hedges have no legal protection.

As CPRE Assistant Secretary Andrew Wilson said: "It is remarkable that however ancient, however beautiful, however important for wildlife a hedge may be, there is no effective legal means of protecting it.".

Not yet. But the National Front is pledged to defend the land as well as the people of Britain. And we will make sure that no merchant bankers or Brussels bureaucrats or greed-crazed "agri-businessmen" will ravage our countryside, wipe out our wildlife, and turn our farmland into first a prairie and then a barren dustbowl.

Britain Backs the Ivory Poachers

IVORY POACHERS got the thumbs-up sign from the Government last month when Britain refused to confiscate Hong Kong's huge stockpile of ivory.

The decision was a disaster for the herds of elephants in Kenya who could now face extinction as poachers see that Britain at least is equivocating over the world ban on the ivory trade which came into force on January 18th.

The Hong Kong stockpile, the equivalent to the tusks of 70,000 elephants is worth £84 million.

A National Front Government would show its commitment to the world ban on ivory by burning the Hong Kong ivory stockpile.

Made in a Sweat Shop

JAMES SEDDON, THE Manchester-based textile firm went bust last month.

The firm started by the present chairman's grandfather in 1910 specialised in shirts and blouses.

1,400 workers in Scotland, 600 in Cheshire and 280 in Manchester now face the dole queue.

Why did the firm go bust?

Because Britain is being swamped by cheap foreign textile imports made in sweat shops in the Far East and our home industry cannot compete on price and give a decent wage and conditions to its workers.

So what's the answer?

Ban textile imports!

Keep Us Rabies Free

RABIES IS SET to enter Britain thanks to the Channel Tunnel.

Millions of pounds is being spent on high-tech security systems for the terminal at Cheriton, near Folkestone, to trap any cat, rat, dog or fox trying to enter Britain.

But even with all the speciality equipment experts still can't stop bats from flying down the tunnel and bringing the deadly disease into Britain.

Britain has always been rabies free - let's keep it that way and fill in the Channel Tunnel.

Point of Order

SIKHS IN BRITAIN are livid over a Department of Transport request that they wear minature or imitation versions of their sacred daggers when taking driving tests.

The DOT requested "Driving examiners are worried that the daggers could be used against them in adverse circumstances. It is not unusual for candidates who have failed their test to become abusive and aggressive".

It's no surprise that the Labour Party have joined the Sikhs and Race Relations Board in criticising the DOT.

We also think the Sikhs should be allowed to wear their daggers - but ONLY when they are back in their own country.

THEY'RE BLUNT IN Yorkshire and when they don't like something they certainly let you know.

The Leeds Branch of the National Front didn't like the National Front AGM's vote to allow Black OAPs to stay in Britain and when NF Deputy Chairman Martin Wingfield, the proposer of that AGM resolution, spoke at their February meeting he was told in no uncertain terms what the branch thought.

More than 50 local members attended the meeting where Martin Wingfield outlined the hopes for the NF in 1990.

Question time was dominated by the Black OAP issue with speaker after speaker attacking the policy, forcing the Deputy Chairman to admit that it seemed highly likely that the policy would be reversed after this year's annual conference.

The Branch submitted a resolution for Conference that "The National Front returns to its policy of the repatriation of all coloured immigrants as it has been for the last 24 years. Any change in policy, for whatever reason, would at best leave us no better than other political parties, and at worst betraying the British people. Britain for the British is and should remain our pledge to our people".

At the meeting Gary Pudsey was awarded the Activist of the Month trophy and the committee stressed its hope that Leeds Branch would have up to seven candidates standing in the forthcoming May Council Elections.

Finally, local member Nigel Howard handed over a personal donation of £2,000 to the National Front Building Fund which was accepted by Martin Wingfield. Nigel a committed member of the Leeds Branch is one of the candidates in May and is determined to do all he can to promote the National Front, this despite being dogged by illness for much of his life.

YOUR FUTURE IN THATCHER'S BRITAIN?
UNEMPLOYMENT OFFICE
NO JOBS, NO HOPE, NO FUTURE . . .
That is the fate of millions of ordinary Britons under the Tories.
Is there an alternative?
Can the Labour Party give us a future?
LABOUR - THE PARTY OF THE PAST Labour has ceased to care about ordinary British people. Saddled with an outdated Socialist ideology it cares more about Blacks and so-called 'Gays' than British workers. Neil Kinnock's only interest is to live it up in £750 a night hotels, and chase after the votes of wealthy 'yuppies'.
THERE IS ONLY ONE REAL ALTERNATIVE TO THE TORIES - THAT ALTERNATIVE IS BRITISH NATIONALISM!

Mandelamania

I HAVE often commented on the fact that television in general and the BBC in particular seems to occupy a world that is not merely divorced from that of ordinary people but that is divorced from reality itself.

In this strange otherworld they are convinced that the general public is waiting with bated breath for the latest news from S.Africa, a faraway country with which Britain no longer has any imperial connection whatever. Furthermore, they seem to believe that the White people of Britain are yearning for the day when their co-racialists in the Republic are overthrown by noble Black savages; a kind of sick wish fulfilment common among the White trash employed by the BBC and the ultimate realisation of a decadent scenario that the BBC has worked so long and so hard to make fact.

The efforts of the latest and feeblest S.African Government to, in the words of its dim Foreign Minister Pik Botha, "return S.Africa to international respectability" have afforded the BBC the opportunity to indulge in a veritable orgy of its favourite perversion, namely ethno-masochism. My, how they love to belittle and defame the Whites; how they long to see them humiliated; how they thirst for the day when S.Africa descends into chaos and they can broadcast lots of lovely newsflashes about the horrors they have helped to inflict on that unhappy country - from a safe distance, of course.

In such a campaign they need not only evil Whites but intrepid saintly Blacks and the BBC cast one Nelson Mandela in the role. Now Nelson Mandela is a Black terrorist leader jailed 27 years ago for planning a campaign of murder against White people. An unlikely choice, perhaps, for the role of living saint but the BBC have nevetheless contrived to sanctify his gelignite and project him as the Great Man, wrongly imprisoned, for whom Africa waits. Strange this rapport that the BBC seems to have with terrorists of all races and political stripes and their never-ending campaigns to get them out of jail.

No doubt most people are now aware of the nature of the BBC's campaign against S.Africa and some, indeed, have been so intimidated by the constant barrage of propaganda as to pay lip service to it. Nevertheless, the BBC's hysterical reaction to Mandela's release from jail must have shocked many of them into realising how close to the borders of insanity the BBC's otherworld really is.

On Saturday afternoon, recently, I was watching the racing from Newbury when the programme was interrupted by a BBC newsflash and we were informed breathlessly by Moira Stewart that the noble terrorist Nelson Mandela was to be released the very next day. My word, how the punters must have been waiting for that. Why, for weeks they had been speculating whether he would be out in time to ride in the Cheltenham Gold Cup and which stable he would condescend to favour.

Again, the following day, while watching the Antiques Road Show, the programme was stopped dead in its tracks in order that we might be transported live - yes folks, live - to hear the saintly African antique Nelson drivelling incoherently about his, or rather His, plan for the future of Africa. Why, the old lag has been so buoyed up by the fawning adulation of White creeps that his mien is now positively presidential, even lordly, so much so that he felt able to patronise the Whites by making a passing reference to their small contribution to S.Africa. Odd, is it not, that the BBC, forever castigating the old men of Russia and China for being out of step with the modern world, should find this Black ancient who has been out of circulation for 27 years an infallible oracle. What has he got that the others haven't? Why, blackness, my friends, blackness!

Since then, of course, the Nelson Mandela Show has been top of the pops in BBC programming. But surely they have neglected the tiny tots who are perhaps too young ever to have heard of Mandela - which is very young indeed. Could we not have a "Listen with Mandela" programme for them? "And now, children, are you comfortable? Here is Aunty Winnie to tell you a fairy story.".

And there are so many more opportunities to keep us in touch with the everyday story of terrorist folk. The Anti-Apartheid Movement are so over the moon and round the bend over Mandela's presumed triumph that they plan to bring him to Wembley for an adoring mass rally.

Since the BBC have already covered one Wembley festival of terrorism - the one, you'll recall, where creepy crawly Neil Kinnock was pictured jiving ineptly with his old red tomato Glenys - perhaps they might consider a joint production with their fellow perverts. The AAM have not said whether the venue is Wembley Stadium or Wembley Pool so could we perhaps look forward to a glittering new spectacular, "Mandela on Ice"? However, since the Zulus regard all other Blacks as inferior and haven't the least intention of accepting Mandela as boss, there is a distinct possibility that he might be iced long before he gets to Wembley.

The BBC have admitted that they have had "a few complaints" over their fawning adulation of Mandela. A few? Well if those "few" feel about the BBC the way I do perhaps we could get together and demonstrate our reaction to the BBC's continuing Mandela Saga. All we would need would be a few sticks of Mandela's sanctified gelignite.

Dog Licences

HAROLD WILSON once threatened rebellious Labour MP's with retribution should they dare to vote against his policies. He would, he said, "withdraw their dog licenses".

In such contempt are our elected representatives held by what has been described as our elective dictatorship.

The Poll Tax provides us with yet another example of the power concentrated in 10 Downing Street and powerlessness of ordinary Members of Parliament.

The Poll Tax was dreamed up as an alternative to the rates. It was Madam Thatcher's very own brainchild. It is unjust, it is cumbersome, it is nigh unworkable, it is a guaranteed vote loser, and it is law.

However, Madam Thatcher said she would abolish the rates and like all obstinate people, has done what she wants regardless of the consequences.

Tory MP's now wail about the effect that the tax will have on their electoral prospects and the fact that their dog licences might be confiscated not by the Prime Minister but by the electorate.

"Can nothing be done about the Poll Tax?", they whine.

Well, they could have done something about it themselves - they could have voted against it.

I wonder if it ever occured to them?

1984 And All That!

DESPITE MY fervent support for Mike Gatting and his "rebel" cricketers in their tour of S.Africa, I must confess that the spectacle of S.African cricket supremo, Dr Ali Bacher, with egg on his face is by no means unwelcome to me. I mean the fellow's always blethering on about cricket being a means of breaking down apartheid; a method of promoting racial integration, and much more pernicious twaddle in a similar vein designed to wheedle favour from people who have already decided to offer up S.Africans as a sacrifice to that evil media invention, "the international community". All of this, needless to say, is calculated to make me grind the few remaining teeth I have left down to the gums.

So the White appeasers shortened the tour to placate the aforementioned capering Black savages. Not, of course, that this should bother Mike Gatting and his men; they are professional cricketers who will be paid the same money for doing less work and will have enhanced their reputations by shutting their ears to the orchestrated cantata of lies, cant, and humbug that is dinned into our consciousness by the trashbag choir who monopolise the media.

However, as was inevitable, the White appeasers have afforded the nation's low-life the opportunity of spewing a positive paean of triumphal hatred against those who have dared to defy the current orthodoxy of White decadence and given the freakish mutants and psychos of the so-called Anti-Apartheid Movement new victims to persecute.

The odious Peter Hain duly slithered from beneath his flat stone to accept one of his periodic media invitations to pronounce upon White iniquity, crow over Gatting's perceived humiliation, and to hint at retribution to follow.

Glee too from the lowest stratum of our prostituted press. "Take you blood money and go!" shrieked the Daily Mirror, leaky flagship of Robert Maxwell's grotty corn and soft porn newspaper empire.

I suppose it is possible to make some excuse for persons of that type - being themselves of dubious racial origin they possibly have an inborn resentment of real White men.

It is difficult to find any excuse, however, for sniffy Tony Lewis, cricket correspondent of the high Tory Sunday Telegraph. Having denounced Gatting for having embarrassed the wimpish appeasers of the TCCB, he hinted darkly, like the horrid Hain, at repercussions that might damage the "rebel's" careers because of their failure to bend the knee in the appropriate modern British manner.

Since there are to be severe restrictions on the number of overseas players allowed to participate in county games, Gatting and co. might find difficulty in getting a game at all for, reasons this Lewis person, since they are no longer eligible to play for "England", they could be classified as "overseas players".

With a mind like that you might feel that he should be working for the BBC. Surprise, surprise, he does!

So it seems that in county sides packed with "English" Indians and West Indians, true-born Englishmen might be deemed aliens. No wonder that I feel increasingly like a stranger in my own country.

Orwell, thou should have lived to see this. Lies are truth; Newspeak is the official language and today, in 1990, it is still 1984.

Who Are the Champions of the Small Business Now?

ANOTHER TORY bubble has again burst in the South East of England.

As a small businessman struggling to run a small company fighting against high rents, high wage costs and high borrowing costs the straw that broke the donkeys back has arrived.

Small shops and businesses are closing by the dozen in our part of Kent due to the latest change in business rates. After fighting through one of the worst business years on record we now find the new rating system dreamed up by the shopkeepers daughter have doubled, trebled and in some cases increased payments by 1000%.

After the Tory lies about immigration, one of their other top priorities was, I quote "We will champion the cause of the small businessman and woman". Well if they are the champions I dread to think who our enemies are.

In the Seventies I nailed my flag to the National Front mast after finding that no other party was the slightest bit interested in small British shopkeepers and businessmen who throughout our history have been called the backbone of the nation.

Is it by accident or design that the Tory Party is set on destroying every vestige of small business and replacing it with Americanised supermarkets and superstores? For the answer just look in the Tory Party coffers and see where the donations are coming from.

Mrs Thatcher and her cronies have taken on an army far stronger than her foreign backers realise. As small businessmen and women realise how far they have been sold down the river by the Tory internationalists they will be joining the National Front to help reinstate a British way of life.

Take Their Problem Home!

ON THE 25th January 'This Week' on ITV did a programme on private fostering.

Every child fostered out was Black, mainly Nigerian whose parents had come to study in Britain and then gone home.

All the foster parents were White.

The foster parents receive only £15 to £20 per week from the parents so to make enough money it is common to have six or seven babies in one home. The babies are therefore at risk and that was the point of the programme.

The conclusion of the programme researchers was that the foster parents were exploiting the Nigerians.

Of course the conclusion should have been not to allow the Nigerians in, in the first place. They are just making use of our education system then when they return home they are leaving their offspring behind for us to look after.

I think it's a downright disgrace.

I WAS first in Soviet Russia 47 years ago in a British destroyer.

In the 47 years since, I have flitted like a migrant bird to Soviet Russia, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and even Cuba! My hatred of the Communist International has never faded, but grown more intense. I was in East Berlin last March, beside Timisoara in November.

Very few people behind the Iron Curtain have much idea of what goes on in the West. Similarly, very few people this side of the curtain know what goes on in the East! It makes me laugh to read what the media say about East Germany, Czechoslovakia and Romania - it's almost all lies.

Therefore, until and if ever the real facts become known, may I advise that your readership doesn't waste time debating the internal affairs of Romania, nor indeed of Eastern Europe.

Little is changing. A certain element will still be in control. Krenz of East Germany, Havel of Czechoslovakia, the new rulers of Romania, our East European pressure group here, Robert Maxwell, Rupert Murdoch, Leon Britain, Nigel Lawson, Gerald Kaufman - all have something in common. They are the enemies of Nationalism.

Sheer Lunacy

TO PROPOSE a Defence Policy without having an updated Foreign Policy which takes account of recent developments on mainland Europe is sheer lunacy.

Incorporating in the proposals Superhawk Reagan-type Star Wars capabilities for a small country like Britain defies all sense and reason.

It should be pointed out that when Reagan proposed the Star Wars scheme most leading physicists questioned whether such a system would ever work? It was condemned due to astronomical costs and its associated effect on the Ozone layer.

One would have thought that now the Cold war is thawing the National Front would have updated its ideas.

Tampering with the Evidence?

I was very pleased to read recently that due to the new freedoms in Eastern Europe, documents from the era of the Third Reich are now to be made available to Western historians.

There are tens of millions of captured documents all dealing with the German occupation of Eastern Europe specially focusing on the forced labour camps set up by the Germans.

You can imagine my horror when I learned that all documents are to first go to the Jewish Holocaust Memorial Council to be microfilmed before being made available for public inspection. With doubt cast recently by historians as to the validity of the Holocaust shouldn't the documents first go to a neutral source to be itemised?

Theatre Review with John McAuley

A Clockwork Orange - 2004

Royal Shakespeare Company - Barbican Theatre

ANTHONY BURGESS in collaboration with Ron Daniels have created the ultimate multi-racial Clockwork Horror Show. Drug-crazed Black and White thugs (droogs) roaming the streets robbing, looting, pillaging and raping. Sounds like Britain 1990 rather than 2004.

The stage show is taken from the novel written in 1962 depicting a fifteeen year old thug called Alex and his three friends. After a night of rape mugging and murder, Alex is arrested and sent to prison for eight years. (Sounds like the law courts of today!).

Unlike the music in the film directed by Stanley Kubrick 14 years ago and which is banned in Britain, the stage show music is Bog Rock by IRA apologists Bono and The Edge from U2 who had the nerve to tell Burgess that their music score was better than his.

There was very little Beethoven compared to the film and what was, was electronically re-recorded by Walter Carlos who later changed his sex and name to Wendy Carlos and subsequently died of AIDS.

The evil of it all comes across in the book and film but not on stage, there it becomes acceptable as shown when the audience laughed when an old lady was being robbed.

Visually the horror show was well put together and Phil Daniels of Quadrophenia and Scum fame made a realistic Alex.

I don't think Anthony Burgess intended people to enjoy his creation but due to the efforts of Ron Daniels and the Royal Shakespeare company they do. Clockwork Orange should leave it's audience in fear for the future because the story line is not too far from reality.

I left the theatre comforted by the knowledge that a National Front government would never let it happen. The hanging of drug barons would stop young brains being poisoned and murderers would murder just once before joining their maker. The multi-racial make-up of the Droogs in the play contradicts the book - probably to make it more realistic - however its a good advert for repatriation.

The play runs until March 13th.

● Suitable case for treatment: Alex from the Clockwork Orange.

100 QUESTIONS & ANSWERS: by Ian Anderson £1.30
What is the National Front? Who joins it? What does it do? Why does it get such bad press coverage? Where does it get its money from? These plus many other questions are answered in this easy to read introduction to the National Front.

NATIONALIST DOCTRINE by Joe Pearce £1.30
Written while serving a sentence in jail for offences against Britain's notorious Race Relations Act, this book explains the three principles which together form the basis of nationalism as a political philosophy; Social Justice, Racial Preservation and National Freedom.

STONEHENGE by Atkinson £4.10
The most impressive ancient monument in the British Isles, but how was it built, by whom and for what purpose.

THE VIKINGS by Johannes Bronsted £6.55
In the years AD800-1100 these Northmen went on expeditions into the heart of Russia, down past Arab Spain and across the Mediterranean, and out across the Atlantic to Iceland, Greenland and America. This illustrated book examines the origin of these people, their ships and equipment, their daily lives and their religious beliefs.

FLAG SPORT

Viewing For All

IF YOU'VE got a television then you have got to have a television license; and if you have to fork out for a license then you expect to get something for it!

But the screening of major sporting events by BBC and ITV could become a thing of the past with Satellite television attempting to outbid the major TV companies for the rights to events like Wimbledon, the Grand National and the FA Cup Final.

The British people have the right to see major sporting events. That right has been handed down through television history. It was enjoyed by our previous generation and it must be enjoyed by our future generations.

That the Cup Final should only be viewed by the 100,000 lucky enough to have tickets, and those rich enough to be able to afford Satellite TV is against the principle of sport in itself.

The National Front has always said "Sport for All", and that goes for viewing sport as well.

● The winning Wightman Cup team of 1958. Left to Right: Ann Shilcock, Shirley Bloomer, Christine Truman, Mrs Halford (non-playing captain, Ann Haydon and Pat Ward.

The Tragedy of the Wightman Cup

THE WIGHTMAN Cup, officially called the Ladies International Lawn Tennis Championship, held every year since 1923 between the ladies of the United States and Britain, has been scrapped.

The Lawn Tennis Association has called a halt to the competition because it believes that Britain can't compete competitively against America in the field of women's tennis.

What a pathetic response. The Association should be training and motivating our tennis players so that they can compete not cancelling the competition to avoid humiliation!

While America has dominated the contest in recent years, Britain has had some famous victories like in 1958 when at Wimbledon the likes of Ann Hayden and Christine Truman battled to a 4-3 win.

I wonder what they think of this capitulation?

PAINT IT BLACK!

TABLE FOOTBALL game Subbuteo is in trouble with the Race Relations Gestapo because there are no teams of Black and White players.

Race Board spokesman Paul Stephenson said the company's behaviour was 'outrageous' and ignoring the impact of Black players on British soccer.

A bemused manager at Subbuteo said that the way the games were manufactured made it only possible to have players all the same colour. If the kids wanted a black player they could always paint it themselves!

Open to Abuse

AT LAST there is to be an inquiry into the running of the Greyhound Racing industry in Britain.

The Betting, Gaming and Lotteries Act states that managements must not have an interest in bookmaking at a track where they are occupiers.

Yet many of Britain's greyhound tracks are run by the big bookmaking firms who supply the results from those tracks to their own betting shops.

At present there is:

 No independent scrutiny of returns made by off-course bookmakers.

 No off-course restrictions on which bookmakers can take bets.

 No requirements for off-course Tote Bets to be transmitted to the track.

The whole system stinks and is open to abuse. The National Front believes that the betting industry should be nationalised giving the punters a fairer and better deal.

Register Recreation Grounds

BRITAIN'S PLAYING fields are being built on at an alarming rate and the Government appear to be able to do little about it.

Developers are buying up large tracts of our recreational ground, letting them fall in disrepair then seeking planning permission to build on them.

Our playing fields must be preserved. No council should be allowed to sell recreational land - it belongs to the community - and all playing fields should be registered so that they are out of bounds to property speculators.

Remember Joe Erskine?

WITH BRITAIN'S heavyweight boxing scene stagnant at the moment, the news of the sad death of Cardiff's own Joe Erskine brought back a flood of fond memories to boxing enthusiasts.

Erskine fought in the late fifties holding the British heavyweight title in 1955 and 57. His battles with Henry Cooper were the feature of boxing for that decade.

Cooper said of Joe Erskine "He gave me more trouble than Richardson, London and Walker put together. He was a brilliant boxer".

Joe Erskine, who retired in 1964 after a heavy defeat by Billy Walker, worked as a publican in Newport. His loss gives us a timely reminder of how British boxing was, and how it should be today.

Cheltenham Selections

STONE FLAKE, if he runs in the Triumph Hurdle at the Cheltenham meeting will take some beating, reports The FLAG tipster. A training setback means there is some doubt of his participation but if he's fit he is good enough to win.

It would be madness to oppose Desert Orchid in the Gold Cup, but the grey wonder horse will be no value to follow. Toby Tobias from Jenny Pitman's stable represents excellent each-way value.

The Champion Hurdler Beech Road and Michael Stoute's Kribensis dominate the betting for Britain's hurdle crown but again the value could be with Ken Morgan's Island Set, guaranteed to be running on up the Cheltenham Hill.

 John Baker the Tiverton trainer 'FLAG' punters were told to follow back in September won the Tote Hurdle at Kempton on Saturday 24th February with Philosiphos at odds of 33-1. Making it six profitable months on the run.

New Stand For Epsom

● Epsom's Grandstand: It's time for something better.

BRITAIN'S PREMIER flat race, the Derby, is at last to be run on a course that befits its status.

No the race is not being moved - just the Epsom race course getting a timely face lift.

Epsom on Derby Day is hell. The Grandstand is not only antiquated and uncomfortable but also dangerous. Passageways are too small and it it a miracle that there have been no major crowd accidents over the years.

After this year's Derby, the 64 year-old stand that has seen many a great Derby finish, will be pulled down and a new £15 million grandstand will be built together with a new hotel for stable lads.

All we can say is . . . 'It's about time too'.

Away-Day for the Home Games!

THE REPORT on the 1-1 draw in the F.A. Trophy 5th Round game on Saturday 24th February between Yeovil and Barrow described a healthy contingent of jubilant Barrow supporters applauding their side off the pitch.

Considering that the Cumbrian side were making one of the longest trips ever by a non-league side to play a competitive game it should be a suprise that more than a handful of supporters made the trip.

But with Barrow, the team The FLAG is following this season, it's not a surprise at all. You see the Barrow Supporters Club is actually based in Surbiton, Surrey and nearly half the 150 members come from the Southern half of the country.

Recently Grandstand on BBC TV acknowledged the commitment of these hard-core Barrow supporters by reporting their 5 hour, £34.50, Saturday pilgrimage to Holker Street for Barrow's home games. The Supporters Club also produce an excellent monthly newsletter and sponsor one league game each season. This year they have also handed over a cheque for £500 to The Bluebirds, Barrow's Youth team.

The players of Barrow have a reputation for loyalty. Many could command bigger retainers and better perks playing for other clubs - but time and time again they have chosen to stay with one of soccer's most far-flung outposts. It is only right then that they are followed by a band of supporters whose loyalty and commitment matches that of the players.
